dear teachers

Education is not preparation for life; education is life itself.

- John Dewey

Learning how to pick up your first pencil, writing your first sentence and reading your first book; They are all things that everyone has done, but how many of us can say we did it completely on our own? Growing up, you are expected to learn and do things that are alien to you. Learning the alphabet, counting, addition, as children these acts that we consider basic knowledge seemed cryptic. So how did we learn? How did we grow to who we are today? The answer to that question is simple; We were taught those skills. We were taught those skills by teachers. The innumerable skills we have harnessed over the course of our lives have all been taught to us by a mentor. This handing down of knowledge is perhaps the most important principle of the advanced human civilization. Teachers sharing their knowledge to the youth is what makes every country run. And on this Teachers day, it's due time that we honor the backbone of our society. Here in PSG, each teacher is special. Teaching us how to solve equations in class or teaching us important values outside of class; every teacher has an important place in our hearts.
